THE GONZALEZES - KATIE & MICHAEL

Married September 24, 2016

Katie & Michael Gonzalez

Why did you choose to get married in Lake Chelan?

I grew up in Lake Chelan. It is absolutely beautiful. Perfect weather for the majority of the summer, the lake and river are so close together, the vineyards and orchards are picturesque and the mountains are gorgeous.

Wedding Venue: Rio Vista Winery on the River

Hometown: Manson, WA

Currently Live: Arizona

Occupations: Katie is a dental hygienist, Michael is a pilot.

How They Met: Michael worked with Katie's best friend's mom at a flight school in Ellensburg, WA. One day he saw a picture of Katie in a friend's wedding album and the friend's mom decided they should meet, so they did.

How They Got Engaged: He proposed at the Wright Brother's Monument, overlooking the field where they first took flight.

Number of Guests: 175

Theme: Awesome

Favorite Detail: Customized arbor, made by Katie's father.

Honeymoon: Road trip back to their home in Arizona.

Advice to Other Couples

Michael and I did 99% of the wedding planning from our apartment in Virginia Beach. All contact with vendors was via Skype, email, text or phone calls. Make sure you give yourself plenty of time to plan ahead, especially if you do not live in the valley.

Planning Your Wedding

INTERVIEW WITH JACQUELYN JAECH,
HARMONY MEADOWS

Q: What should a couple look for in a wedding planner?

A couple should look for a planner who shares the same priorities and overall vision for their wedding. It is super important to find someone whose personality and communication styles click with yours.

Q: What do you see as the current trends in weddings?

Current trends that I've seen are the use of natural elements like wood and stone, accompanied by lots of greenery with neutral accents. In addition, in lieu of a receiving line, there has been a trend for couples to spend time with their guests right after the ceremony, mingling and playing yard games.

Q: What's the best advice you give to brides?

Social media has really elevated the pressure brides face to make sure all of their friends are included in the ceremony. I tell brides to make sure their special day is about their love for one another and to make choices that have significant meaning to them.

Q: How do you comfort your brides on their big day?

When tensions are high, I encourage my brides to take a long, deep breath to help bring her focus back to the fact that she is about to marry the partner of her dreams. I reassure my brides that we have our trusty bridal emergency kit and that all the details are covered.

Q: How many full scale weddings have you planned?

I have planned dozens of weddings, from elaborate to casual, both at Harmony Meadows and at other venues.

Q: What services do you offer?

We provide complimentary day-of wedding services for every bride. We also offer planning packages for the couple that wants the full support of professionals every step of the way. This can include design, vendor bookings, planning tools, etiquette information and hotel and transportation accommodations.

Other helpful tips?

I encourage brides to have an "unplugged" ceremony so the guests can be fully present during the ceremony. This allows you to control the posting of photos of your special day.

Q: How will you help brides stay within their budget?

I help brides stay within their budget by helping them prioritize what is important to them. For some, it is the wedding dress, for others it is the entertainment or the wine. The other item that drives cost is the number of guests. I encourage brides to be selective with their invitation list. I ask, "Would you go out to dinner with this person?" It is surprising how often the bride answers "no."

Married July 22, 2017

Keisha & Ben Kusak

Why did you choose to get married in Lake Chelan?

The Lake Chelan Valley is a special place for us. I grew up in Manson and Ben spent many of his childhood summers visiting the valley. We knew we wanted a summer wedding and that Lake Chelan would provide the sunny weather we were hoping for. It did not disappoint - it was 90 degrees and blue skies! It was important to us to support small businesses that we know and love and having our wedding in the Lake Chelan Valley provided that opportunity.

Wedding Venue: Greens Landing Weddings & Events

Hometown: Manson, WA & Seattle, WA

Currently Live: Eastlake neighborhood of Seattle.

Occupations: Keisha is a kindergarten teacher and Ben is a software engineer.

How They Met: They met their freshman year at the University of Washington. Ben was able to woo Keisha with numerous dates to the library and good cheese.

How They Got Engaged:

From Ben: Keisha and I had been together for nearly 7 years when I proposed. We try to make it out for date night once a week. On a cold Friday night in January, we ate at one of our favorite restaurants in Seattle (Fonda la Catrina). While we were out, I had arranged for Keisha's little sister to decorate our apartment with flowers from Pike Place Market. When we came home, Keisha was stunned. I proposed, she said yes. I cried, she laughed. Now we are hitched.

Number of Guests: 160 of our closest friends and family.

Theme: Simple with a splash of pineapple. Lake Chelan is such a beautiful place on it's own, we didn't have to dress it up much.

Honeymoon: Maui, Hawaii

Advice to Other Couples

Have fun! You spend so much time planning, coordinating, emailing, etc. that it's easy to forget you are planning a celebration of love and friendship (and you!). So remember, when things don't go as planned, all people will remember is the love, the beauty and the fun.

Photographing Your Day

INTERVIEW WITH
HILLARY BELTON PHOTOGRAPHY

Q: What should a couple look for in a wedding photographer?

1. Someone they really connect with! A wedding day is such a wonderful day, but it is also exhausting and can be stressful. Having a photographer that makes you feel relaxed and comfortable is so important, because it really shows through the photographs!
2. A style you will look back on forever and be so grateful you chose that photographer's special "look." These images are the only thing that keep your wedding day alive forever!

Q: What other functions does a photographer serve, other than taking photos?

I have done everything from teaching the bride and groom how to cut their cake to helping coordinate timelines to helping the bride get in her dress. I am willing to do whatever I can to make the day special for the bride and her family! A photographer is the head of the show, and they should be willing to do whatever it takes, to not only get the right shots, but to make sure the day is going to run smoothly. Sometimes that means putting the camera down and tying the dress for a quick second!

Q: What do you see as the current trends in photography at weddings?

Right now, dark and moody seems to be really taking over! Also, it isn't so much about that one perfect portrait where the bride and groom are facing the camera. People want candid, raw moments more than they want that "picture perfect" traditional image.

Q: How would you describe your photography style (e.g. traditional, photojournalistic, creative)?

I have a romantic, timeless and light and bright style. I try to capture rich colors and joyful reactions! I want my clients to look back on their photos 5+ years from now and not see some filter or trend in their images, but how the day really looked. Their same skin tones, the bold colors in the bouquets, the joy that the day brought...it is easy to get caught up in so much more in the shooting and editing process. However, I do stick to my guns and keep it classic.

Q: How long have you been photographing weddings?

Just over 3 years. I love Lake Chelan weddings!

Q: What are your favorite wedding shots?

I have a few favorite poses that I use that always bring out a genuine reaction from the couples. One of my favorite poses comes from me having the groom wrap his arms around his bride and whisper something in her ear. It is usually silly or super romantic, and I always get such a sweet giggle or smile out of the bride that is absolutely candid and heartfelt. It works so well for the couples that struggle to relax at first or feel awkward in front of the camera. It is about making them feel like it is just the two of them standing there.

Other helpful tips?

- Put money into the important things. It isn't about having a "Pinterest-worthy" wedding or spending $100K.
- Make sure you feel beautiful and comfortable in what you're wearing.
- Hire a photographer that you LOVE, not just someone cheap enough. You will regret it, I promise!
- Relax and have fun!

Why did you choose to get married in Lake Chelan?

Michael's family owns a cabin in Manson, and we would go to Chelan for all of our vacations. Lake Chelan is our happy place. We also love the weather, the views, the wine and the people!

Wedding Venue: Karma Vineyards

Hometown: Kirkland, WA

Occupations: Emily is in customer service at Whole Foods and Michael is an operations manager for Organized Spaces.

How They Met: Through friends. Emily was working with his roommate's girlfriend at Nordstrom at the time.

How They Got Engaged: Christmas morning, 2016. After we had opened the gifts, he said there was one more, and he got down on one knee and proposed.

Number of Guests: 75

Theme: Color, classic, confetti

Favorite Detail: I loved the entrance we had walking into the reception. I love confetti and Michael made sure we had a confetti moment at the wedding. We used biodegradable confetti in the shapes of hearts.

Honeymoon: New York City

Advice to Other Couples

- Take one thing at a time, as it can become overwhelming. Everything will be perfect.
- Pick a place well in advance. Visit the venue and try the food to see how service is when you aren't a potential wedding customer.

Catering & Drinks

INTERVIEW WITH
VALARIE OF RAVENOUS
CATERING

Q: What should a couple look for in a wedding caterer?

Good reputation, long standing community involvement. Check reviews and how long the caterer has been in business. Do they have a commercial kitchen? Are they friendly? Do they have good communication skills?

Q: How do you go about serving locally sourced food?

We grow lots and lots of veggies, herbs and have our own fruit trees. We purchase from local side of the road vendors and farmers. We outsource local grocery stores that support local growers.

Q: Do you personalize menus or is everything pre-set?

We don't do "set" menus. We craft our selections depending upon what the client desires, as well as the produce peaking at that point in the season. Our motto is, "all we do is cater to you" and we live by it. We completely custom create each menu to fit the event and the client. We do not have any set menus or pricing.

Q: What other functions does a caterer serve, other than making the food?

Many caterers, including ourselves, have experienced wait staff and dishes and glassware for rent. Bar service and set up and tear down of events is also something we offer, as well as other caterers..

Q: Can you work at most Lake Chelan wedding venues and with other vendors?

As an off-site caterer, we are grateful for the opportunity to work at so many of the venues within the Lake Chelan Valley that don't have on-site cooking. We work with so many vendors.

Q: What do you see as the current trends in food at weddings?

- Fresh, local and sustainable foods.
- Identifying where the food is coming from.
- Very light and casual.
- More stations for mingling.
- Longer cocktail times.
- We are seeing more pairing with home brews and gourmet ice cream carts.

Other helpful tips?

Book early and lock down your vendors. Relax and eat the night of your wedding. Enjoy the process of planning. Think outside the box on foods for your menu.

The Perfect Flowers

INTERVIEW WITH JANINE
OF J9BING FLORAL

Q: How do you go about working with a couple to design their wedding flowers?

We start by offering a free consultation. During this time, we discuss the size of your wedding and the “what’s and where’s” of your flower needs. To get the most value from this initial meeting, it’s important to have an idea of what your style, color and concept is. To make your wedding flowers truly unique, come with as many ideas as you can. It’s important to establish the basics early so we have an idea of how this fits into the budget. In the months leading up to the wedding, we can fine tune the plan as needed.

Q: How can a couple maximize their floral budget?

Most importantly, being flexible can save you money. If you are open to a variety of colors and flowers within your color scheme, generally your flowers won't cost as much. Although choosing flowers that are in season is important, some flowers still may test your budget. Another consideration is the size of the flowers chosen. Large gerberas, hydrangeas, and larger mums will take up a lot more room than freesia. Including flowers that have many blooms to a stem is also a helpful option. Lastly, incorporating more greens into your table arrangements is an elegant option for staying within budget. As your florist, I can help you stretch your floral dollars.

Q: Do you use local, seasonal flowers?

Absolutely. Quality and value are the determining factors in where product is brought in, and it’s always a nice option working with local fresh cut flowers. As an active Master Gardener Volunteer from the WSU extension program, I’ve developed wonderful friendships with many local gardeners who enjoy being a resource.

Q: What can a couple do with bouquets and arrangements after their wedding is over?

Many couples offer them as a take home gift for their guests. You can also work with your venue to have them shared with the Lake Chelan Senior Center.

Q: What do you like best about designing wedding florals?

I love being a part of what brings color and beauty to an event. Flowers offer that special touch, and the opportunity to work directly with the bride to support her vision is what I enjoy doing. Weddings are a lot of fun, and they should be. It’s a time for family and friends to celebrate. The experience and knowledge I bring in supporting a Lake Chelan Destination wedding, is what allows me to say “I love what I do”.
